Rhead Group Appoints New Head of Environmental Services

Jacquie Critchely has joined professional services consultancy, Rhead Group Limited, as Head of Environmental Services with immediate effect.

“We are delighted to welcome Jacquie to our team.” Said Andrew Ferguson, Managing Director, Rhead Group.”

“Prior to joining the Rhead Group Jacquie has been engaged by a number of major utilities including Scottish Power Energy Networks, Southern Water, National Grid and United Utilities, in a variety of technical and managerial roles involved with environmental impact assessments and town planning.

During her twenty year career she has been responsible for managing multi-disciplinary environmental project teams and providing specialist environmental advice for an extensive range of projects including the co-ordination of environmental impact assessments for a number of major pipeline developments, clean and waste water treatment plants, transport schemes, and minerals and waste developments. As a result she brings significant experience of liaising with all the parties involved in major projects including clients, stakeholders, environmental specialists and construction contractors.”
