Professional Construction Services Firm, the Rhead Group, Expands Operations In Far East Asia

Singapore based John Blowers Commercial Consultants (JBCC) has been acquired by the Rhead Group as part of the company's continuing international expansion plans. The business will operate as JBCC Rhead Pte.

JBCC has an extensive array of commercial and professional services to support and manage the delivery of major construction programmes. The team has significant experience of working in the Far East and Australasian regions and recently moved into a larger office in Singapore in response to the growth in the local market.

The Rhead Group has built a strong track record of delivering large infrastructure programmes for the energy, power generation, transport and utility sectors with over 25 years' experience of managing major capital construction projects valued at over £4 billion per year. The company serves international clients and their projects all over the world and already has offices in the UK, Middle East and South Africa.

"We are delighted to welcome JBCC and their clients to the Rhead Group. The acquisition of JBCC will further add to the breadth of the Rhead Group's services whilst expanding our international footprint with a new office in Singapore. I firmly believe that the combined strength of JBCC and Rhead will be well positioned to offer clients an innovative, responsive and highly experienced local capability supported by an international consultancy. We look forward to working with the JBCC team and their clients to continue to expand our presence in the Far East and Australasian regions," commented Nigel Curry, CEO of the Rhead Group.

"This is a great testament to the quality of our business and technical expertise. We have earned a great reputation for our capability in the locale. Now, with the Rhead Group behind us, we can offer clients in the region access to an even wider pool of international project management and cost assurance consultancy knowledge and a broader range of services to support their major construction programmes," said John Blowers, Regional Director of JBCC Rhead.
