October 2008

Lee Foster appointed as member of The Royal Institution of Naval Architects

Lee Foster, Divisional Director, Rhead Group, has been appointed as a member of the prestigious Royal Institution of Naval Architects (MRINA)

The RINA is one of 36 engineering institutions regulated under Royal Charter. The Institute was founded in 1860 in London in order to "...advance the art and science of ship design...", and has now achieved a global status as a respected international organisation. Its members have expertise in the fields of design, construction, maintenance and operation of all marine vessels and structures.

Having proudly received his membership following a formal review by the Institutions membership board in London, Lee commented: "I am delighted to have become a full corporate member of such a respected organisation. The RINA draws its membership from over 90 countries and is recognised by industry, academic institutions and maritime organisations across the globe."

"As a Divisional Director responsible for the Rhead Group's portfolio of services across the renewable energy, waste to energy and nuclear programmes, I feel this is recognition for the team – and signals our growing profile as a leader in international construction and infrastructure projects.

"I would like to thank everyone for their support and good wishes."

Andrew Ferguson, Managing Director, Rhead Group, added: "Lee only joined the Group this year, but has already demonstrated a tremendous flair for this sector, playing a key role in our strategic development. On behalf of the Rhead Group, I would like to offer him our congratulations on such a tremendous achievement."
