Peter Nicholas achieves Fellowship status with The Association for Project Safety

Peter Nicholas head of health & safety for the Rhead Group was today awarded fellowship with the Association for Project Safety.

The Association for Project Safety (a Registered Company, Limited by Guarantee) provides a forum for all those individuals, organisations and relevant authorities involved in the supervision, management and education of health and safety practices, processes and procedures in the undertaking of construction projects as defined in the Construction (Design and Management) Regulations 2007 [CDM2007] in order to develop, set and advance standards of excellence together with relevant support and educational services.

As a multi-disciplinary, advisory and representative body, the Association provides clients with a central source not only of information but also of practitioners who, as Registered Members, satisfy the standard required of CDM 2007 with regard to demonstrating competence.

Andrew Ferguson, managing director comments: "gaining this Fellowship demonstrates that Peter has a very high level of understanding, interpretation and competence of the CDM Regulations and activities as a CDM Co-ordinator and Planning Supervisor. Ongoing professional development and training is extremely important for all members of staff. We extend our congratulations to Peter for this high level of achievement."
