

PRESS RELEASE

September 2007 – for immediate release

The Rhead Group opens South West regional office

The Rhead Group has today announced the opening of its South West office in Plymouth.

In response to the massive influx of investment into the region, including funding from the European Union, the location is ideally suited to The Rhead Group in terms of transportation and infrastructure opportunities, including highways, Network Rail and the port itself.

With extensive project and programme management potential, the major utility companies, such as South West Water, plan to pump billions of pounds into the area over the next few years.

The Rhead Group recognised the location as a centre for exponential growth in its core activities. The new office will provide a base to identify emerging projects, and will be well placed to deliver substantial commercial contracts.

Nigel Curry, the newly appointed Chief Executive at the Rhead Group, highlighted the importance of the South West in the Group's strategic thinking: "We are determined to have a footprint in this high growth market, and are keen to recruit locally to add to our already internationally recognised skill base. The Rhead Group's powerful credentials in project and programme management will correspond well to the rapid increase of infrastructure development in the region.

"Over the next few weeks I will be meeting with local business leaders to establish our presence and demonstrate our strength in this dynamic sector. This is an ideal opportunity for the company and we look forward to progressing a number of high profile projects."
